

Intergalactic Art

13th Feb 2015

Wow intergalactic Art was out of this world today with the children learning all about the different temperatures and composition of the planets in space. Ice painting took center stage with the intergalactic space adventurers really getting their hands messy with some seriously fun painting time. We also learnt about meteors and asteroids and craters by creating a huge flour and coca lunar surface and then dropping clay projectiles to create different size lunar craters. Good Job!
